III. General Professional Experience:

Mr. Pollner has built a reputation for resolving highly sensitive cases involving complex litigation. He has advised CEO's of major corporations, both domestic and international, on numerous strategic corporate matters. He has been retained by corporate executive, judges and institutions to investigate corporate misconduct, assist in the untangling of complex tax issues, structure workouts and bankruptcies, and decipher the government's regulatory maze. He has also defended high-profile individuals and institutions accused of wrongdoing by government agencies.

His distinguished government service began when he was chosen by Attorney General William P. Rogers to participate in the Attorney General's Program for Honor Law Graduates. As a result, he served in the Justice Department under the guidance of Deputy Attorney General Lawrence E. Walsh (subsequently appointed Special Prosecutor in the Iran/Contra investigation) and Byron R. White (later a Supreme Court Justice), drafting provisions of the Internal Revenue Code and authoring many of Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy's legislative programs, including his program to curb organized crime and racketeering.

Mr. Pollner then served for several years as a federal prosecutor in the United States Attorney's Office in New York, where he successfully prosecuted precedent-making cases and had the distinction of never losing a trial.

Following his position at Nixon, Mudge, Rose, Guthrie and Alexander, he returned to Washington, D.C., to serve as Deputy Assistant of the Treasury and Director of Law Enforcement under Secretaries of the Treasury David Kennedy, John Connally and George Schultz. He developed and coordinated all law enforcement policy, initiatives and interactions with various Bureaus of the Treasury, including the IRS, Customs, Secret Service and Interpol, other federal departments and agencies, and foreign governments. He supervised Interpol activities, helped negotiate the Swiss Mutual Assistance Treaty and served on various Cabinet committees. He was also head of the U.S. Delegation to various Interpol General Assemblies, including those held in Belgium, Germany and Canada. Secretary Schultz, at the conclusion of his term as Secretary, presented Mr. Pollner with the Treasury Department's Meritorious Service Award. Upon returning to private practice, Mr. Pollner was appointed by Secretary of State William P. Rogers as the U.S. representative to the International Narcotics Control Board of the United Nations, a position he held for several years.

Upon returning to private practice, Mr. Pollner was appointed by Secretary of State William P. Rogers as the U.S. representative to the International Narcotics Control Board of the United Nations, a position he held for several years. Mr. Pollner is admitted to the New York State Bar and the Florida and District of Columbia Bar Associations. He is also a member of the American Bar Association, the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, the National District Attorney's Association and the New York State District Attorneys' Association.

IV. General Pertinent Experience:

Mr. Pollner has been appointed trustee and examiner in numerous bankruptcy cases by Bankruptcy Judges in New York and Delaware, notably the Wedtech case involving corruption by a defense contractor and Lomas Mortgage USA in Texas involving the largest mortgage servicing company in the world. He also has handled various workouts and disputes between corporations, its directors and other entities.

V. Mediation Training:

He has been trained while in the government to handle numerous disputes between agencies, various countries and the U.S. and related matters.

VI. Pertinent Bankruptcy Training:

Mr. Pollner was recently appointed by a Federal Bankruptcy Judge as the Litigation Trustee, with a $5 million litigation fund, of the Texas-based Lomas Financial Corporation and Lomas Mortgage USA Joint Litigation Trust, which was the largest mortgage servicing company in the country. Mr. Pollner was appointed by the Federal Bankruptcy Court as counsel to Wedtech Corporation to cleanse it of criminality.
